

310 Second Street, S.E.
Washington 3, D. C.

7 June 1954

Scientific American
2 West 45th Street
New York 36, New York

Gentlemen:

I am somewhat astonished to receive the enclosed request for extension of my subscription in view of the fact that I did renew it by similar form and enclosed my check number 312 dated 22 March 1954, drawn on the Liberty National Bank of Washington, D. C. However, since my check for $9.00 has not yet cleared the Bank it appears that my letter went astray and if so, I should notify the Bank to stop payment thereon and send you a new check for a 2-year subscription.

Please advise me what your records show. It is possible that my renewal and check were also in an envelop containing a letter I sent the Editor about the same date, 22 March. Perhaps my renewal slip and check are in somebody's basket in the editorial office!

Sincerely,

WILLIAM F. FRIEDMAN