COMMENTS ON TCP REPORT

I do not believe that this is the last we'll hear of any of the TCP's recommendations.

The TCP gives a strong endorsement of the "Robertson Report." Someone might get the idea that it's time for an accounting on each of the recommendations made. The Director ought to be fore-warned of this possibility.

In this regard, the TCP stressed:

R. Report

p.13       1. Quantification of indicators.

p. 13 + 24       2. Use of modern psychometric techniques.

p.14 + 25       3. A career service in COMINT for Air Force and Army personnel.

p. 20       4. Serious attention to "anomalous" propagation.

p. 21       5. Provision of integral D/F facilities.

p. 22       6. Equipments for detection and reception of naval communications systems.

p. 25       7. Provision of analytic support at the intercept sites.

Recommendation 4 is somewhat consistent with one of the recommendations in Dr. Wilks' Trip Report.

* * *

Recommendation 5, for clandestine COMINT operations, is consistent with some recent USCIB discussions.

* * *

Recommendation 6 is consistent with field commanders' desire to smooth the way for their reception of COMINT (TACOMINT) of immediate operational value.

Can secure experimental techniques be devised to test directly Russia's penetration of our COMINT?
